In reference to the letter issued by the British immigration and passport department, regarding the validity dates of visit visas “visit-C”, where some visas have been printed with one validity and expiry date in the same day, which means that the visa is valid only for one day, while others are printed without specifying the residency period.

The British immigration and passport department, (visa centre) attempting to communicate with the affected passengers to correct their visas before departure, knowing that airlines can accept them on their flights with their current visas and will be admitted to the UK without any responsibility upon the airline.

Therefore, Travel Service Providers are kindly requested to inform passengers of the importance to check their visas before travelling and to communicate with the responsible centre that issued them the visa at the first place to be replaced for free when they return home.

Passengers holding the mentioned visas will be accepted on their flights to the United Kingdom.

For more information please contact the manager at the British Immigration Department, or the Contact Department for the airlines at the British Immigration at:
